Keep their Record Unveiled. Honest voters should not permit them-Honest voters should not permit themselves to be deceived by the persistent efforts of a few conservative Republicans to conceal the real objects of the controlling elements of that party. There are two great leading features of the Republican party that overshadow all others and should never be lost sight of by voters.

The Circleville Watchman thus sets them forth. First, they demand that Congress and all the branches of the iederal governand all the branches of the iederal governand all the branches of the iederal governand and all the branches of the iederal governand governan should never be lost sight of by voters .in all the terrritories owned by the United States, and this dogma is to be pressed to the bitter end, under Lincoln's "irrepressible conflit," without any regard to the rights of the South in the Territories, or its fatal consequences upon the stability and peace of the Union. In the second place, all the leading Republicans, with Lincoln as chief, are determined to
